First Day: October 5, 1953. Blessings on thee, little goonbox, arriving fresh from the boondocks. We were cosmopolitan!

Anatomy: When the 3 Turtles introduced us to our cada-

HISTORY

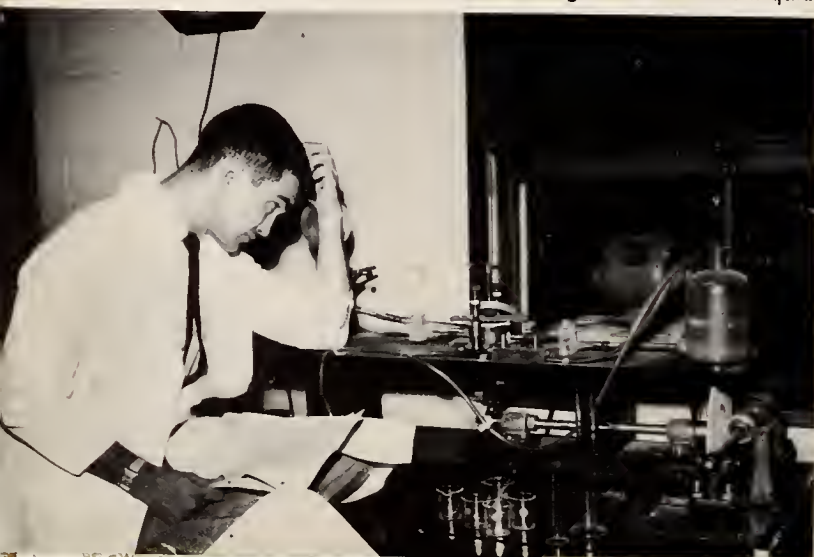

The polished brass of rails and door loomed large and bright in the early morning sunlight of October 5, 1953, as the 54 of us staggered under the weight of micrascapes, books, and irrefutable knowledge up the front steps. We were surprised by the outstretched hands at the entranceway but were rapidly initiated into the customs of Bowman Gray in discovering that the hands belonged to Mr. Parker and Mrs. Parsons, each demanding his share of the filthy lucre. The first few days were formal and austere until the inimitable Toookie passed her watch instead of the slide in Histology practical. From that point the Class of '57 began to make history. Initially Bacte.: Spring came 'round again, and with it came Shigella, Salmonella, and the Tuttlles.

Physiology: "What the hell does this do?!", we asked, knowing that we should see this machine leering at us on the next quiz.

Whites: Even in the certain knowledge that we should be vers, we were apprehensive; but they were scared STIFF!!!

Pathology found us peering down the 'scope in futile attempt to see "the response of the host to the causative organism."

we were impeded by hordes of sodium and chloride ions "holding hands" and singing "Soltus sodii non existot" while the Swoose sagely nodded her coiffure, which defied all laws of grovity. We were lured from the labyrinth of the Krebs' cycle by the Pied Piper-like fascination of the Turtle procession into the murky recesses of the Anatomy Lab, from which we made hourly forays for food, cokes, and smokes. Having deposited on a cerebral shelf our transitory knowledge of the "hoirt" and the pelvic tilt, we were promoted (?) to Physiology, where the babble of Clodfelter's menagerie was exceeded in volume only by the guffaws of the staff. From dogs to guinea pigs, from cacophony to symphony, from Physiology to Bacteriology. The brevity of the lab periods still allowed time for Bernie to cultivate and describe the lepra bocillus. Down the holl were rows of slides for Pathology, which was a course "caricaturized by remizions and exaggerbations" of Smith, Klein, and Moose, manufacturers, not of Thorazine, but of Josh Turnage cells.

The second year brought more of the same, except twice as much. Dr. Prichard mesmerized us with his erudition but still managed to see that well over half of us got mail that summer. Exams were found to be as effective a libido reducer as Spermatocide C, which, to our delight, was not employed in Physical Diagnosis. However, Little Caesar's mistaken for barbers, the mota was "At ease, disease!"

Clinic Presentotion: Are those lab values normal? How should WE know; 28 of us received letters in Sophomore Hematology.

Fluids: Those omnipresent battles on 2nd West were only slightly less ubiquitous than lab requests on 3rd.

sadistic interest in spastic colitis was satisfied since the announcement that there would be no exam was made ten minutes after it was scheduled to begin.

Shrieking, "At ease, disease," we leaped into our whites and exploded onto the wards — Sam with his ophthalmoscope shining into his own fundus, Max with his stethoscope pressing his carotids, and Bill Myers bellowing his "War-har-har. And what did you have for breakfast?" Our enthusiasm was dimmed only by the realization that "work is the scourge of the drinking class." Medicine was a wonderful teaching quarter, in spite of the fact that "then remains these three: histories, physicals, and lab work; but the greatest of these is lab work." The best class in OB was not one of the student "lectures" but the delivery of twins to John James' wife. OB "greens" were exchanged for surgical ones which came from the same laundry but ended up being donned by entirely different personalities, e. g., Dr. Boston Blackie, Surgeon Extra-

Medical Orals: Diabetes, diphtheria, digitalis we studied. Diarrhea we had—three are shown; eleven are in the "john".

OB: We thought that quarter would never end. We were worked to the bone by an epidemic of pregnancy virus in Montarry.

ornery. His immediate superior, though, could go him one better with his pseudo-Oxfordian accent.

The fourth and final round was begun by the somewhat disenchanted members of our ranks. There were more gratifying incidents, such as Tookie's assuring Dean Carpenter that her recognition of him was as incomplete as his of the senior class. There were signs of progress: medical histories shrank to plausible lengths; the Mafia lost some of its grip on OB; and a much welcomed teaching course came into our curriculum—Pediatrics. Senior OB was more enjoyable than junior OB, when, according to LaLa, we spent most of our time doing "slut work." Miss Shirley continued to manage Surgery with the compassion of a Nietzsche through her front man, HHB. Finally we reached that long awaited day of June 3, 1957, when we were graduated not with an infinite knowledge but with Colin Wilson's consoling thought: "In the land of the blind the one-eyed man is king."

Surgery: Blood sugars and arches fall and OR supervisors shriek, but one holds tightly to the idiot stick.

OPD: Now, let's see—your head, neck, chest, arms, hands, ob-damen, genitalia, legs, and feet ache. Da your teeth itch, too?

Graduation: June 3, 1957. Stepping over the cow piles, we were graduated in the Caliseum. Ga ye into all the world.

DEDICATION

Ernest H. Yount, jr.

"No bubble is so iridescent or floats so high as that blown by the successful teacher." Sir William Osler's description can well be applied to the didactic abilities of the man to whom the 1957 Gray Matter is dedicated. The last of a list of honors, which includes Phi Beta Kappa and Alpha Omega Alpha, is receipt of a Markle Scholarship, the goal of which is "to improve medical research and education."

The 1957 graduates first encountered the Chairman of the Department of Medicine in their junior year. That first meeting in the third south conference room was memorable for the brevity, clarity, and sincerity of the explanation regarding the privileges and duties of the third year student on Medicine. Ward classes and clinics conducted by this doctor resulted in great admiration for his teaching ability, which was further felt by its influence on the house staff. The sensation of "learning something" caused many students to wish for three quarters on Medicine. However, the pedagogic aspect of this versatile personality was equaled, if not superseded, by his contacts with patients, witnessed best in the fourth year. It would be difficult to determine who, his students or his patients, holds this internist in higher esteem. It is, then, to this "doctor's doctor," Ernest H. Yount, jr., that we, the Class of 1957, do gratefully dedicate our yearbook.

FACULTY

"I don't mind your whistling in the lab if no one else can hear you."

"The prostate is about the size of a horse chestnut. Has anybody ever seen a horse chestnut?"

"Members of the TEAM!"

"Well, folks, today we are going to talk about-----."

"Hee, hee, hee. The man fell out the window and broke both legs. Hee, hee, hee."

"Same old cheap WPA collagen."

"This is a non-specific zample of a disease seen only in chirun."

"Nancy, what is the S-T segment on Paul Dudley White's EKG?"

"War, har, har."

"The mean of the mean, statistically speaking, is-----."

"The case of Mrs. Tillie K."

"Maultsby, how do you spell kanona?"

"I don't know much about surgery; I only spent eight years in it. However, I refer you to the JAMA-----."

"I can assure you that you must appreciate the fact."

"Zees patient obviously has-----."

"Damn rare."

"And the daddy says, 'Baby, mammie wants you to use the pottie'."

"If you want to sleep, it's all right. The kidney isn't really important."

"Don't pick the girls' pockets every time they have dysmenorrhea."

"And, boys, please don't do rectals on the female obstetricians."

ADMINISTRATION

Administrative assistants: left to right, Miss Jane Reed, Assistant to the Dean; Miss Katherine Davis, Alumni Secretary; Miss Nell Benton, Librarian; Mrs. Elizabeth Hamrick, Secretary to Registrar.

ANATOMY

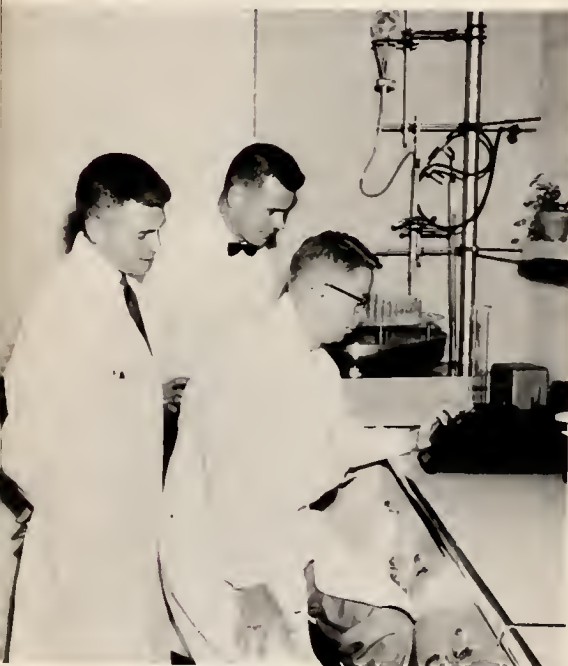

Dr. Warren Andrew, Professor of Anatomy, contemplates the rent in the orbit of his treasured skull put there by '57's own Max Lassiter.

Dr. Norman M. Sulkin, Associate Professor of Anatomy, prepares to scan a slide stained by Dr. Charles McCreight, Instructor in Anatomy.

BACTERIOLOGY

Microbiologists Sam Love, Instructor; Bob Tuttle, Assistant Professor; Peter Baram, Instructor, use the machine.

A report of a stain positive for tubercle bacilli is scrutinized by technicians Louise Curry (student), JoAnne Clark, Tommie Thompson, Emma Graham, Ann Hardy (student), and Katherine Oglesby (student).

Professor of Pathology Robert Morehead examines an autopsy report which interests Dr. Coy C. Carpenter, Professor of Pathology, and Dr. Martin Netsky, Professor of Neuropathology.

PATHOLOGY

Pathology Instructors: Doctors Smith Foushee, J. A. White, H. C. Swartout, Zelma Kalnins.

RADIOLOGY

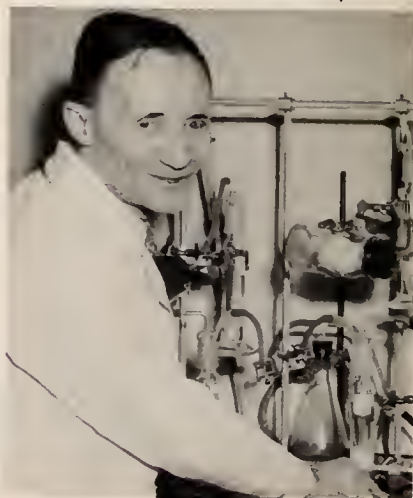

Changes in a chest film are discussed with a resident by Dr. James Martin, Assistant Professor of Radiology.
Dr. Isadore Meschan
Professor of Radiology

BIOCHEMISTRY

A recording of radioactivities occupies the attention of Dr. Marjorie Swanson, Associate Professor of Biochemistry, and Dr. Hugh B. Lofland, Instructor.

Dr. Camillo Artom
Professor of Biochemistry

PHYSIOLOGY and PHARMACOLOGY

Dr. Harold D. Green
Professor of Physiology and Pharmacology

Dr. J. R. R. Babb and Dr. Eugene A. Conrad, Instructors, examine the Physiology Manual as Mr. Mack F.
Parsons, an Assistant in the Dept., beams his approval.

The "brain child" of Drs. Merrill Spencer and Adam Denison, Assistant Professors of Physiology and Pharmacology, has just produced a tracing being examined.

Dr. J. M. Little
Professor of Pharmacology,
Associate Professor of Physiology.

MEDICINE

Dr. David Cayer, Professor of Medicine

Dr. Ernest H. Yount, jr., Chairmon of Dept.

Dr. Wingate M. Johnson, Professor Emeritus

Dr. Robert C. McMillan, Professor of Medicine

The Internal Medicine Faculty includes, seated, Drs. C. Glenn Sawyer, Assistant Professor; Charles M. Howell, Instructor; Henry L. Valk, Assistant Professor; standing, Frank Sohmer, jr., John H. Felts, and Emery C. Miller, all Instructors.

PEDIATRICS

Dr. Weston P. Kelsey, Chairman of Dept.

Dr. Leroy J. Butler, Professor of Pediatrics

Dr. Robert Vann, Instructor in Pediatrics, and Dr. Alanson Hinman, Assistant Professor of Pediatrics, peruse the old chart of a patient in an effort to ascertain the child's early psychiatric history.

Female members of the part time pediatrics faculty, Drs. Elizabeth Conrad, Assistant Professor; Ruth O'Neal, Assistant Professor; and Katherine H. Anderson, Associate Professor, smile over the successful therapy employed in the case.

Dr. Manson Meads
Professor of Preventive Medicine

PREVENTIVE MEDICINE

Students' Charts occupy Drs. Lucille Hutoff, Associate Professor, and Nash Herndon, Professor of Medical Genetics.

ANESTHESIOLOGY

Dr. Roscae Wall
Professor of Anesthesiology

Drs. LeRoy Crandell, Assistant Professor, and Gordon Poge, Instructor, become enlightened.

SURGERY

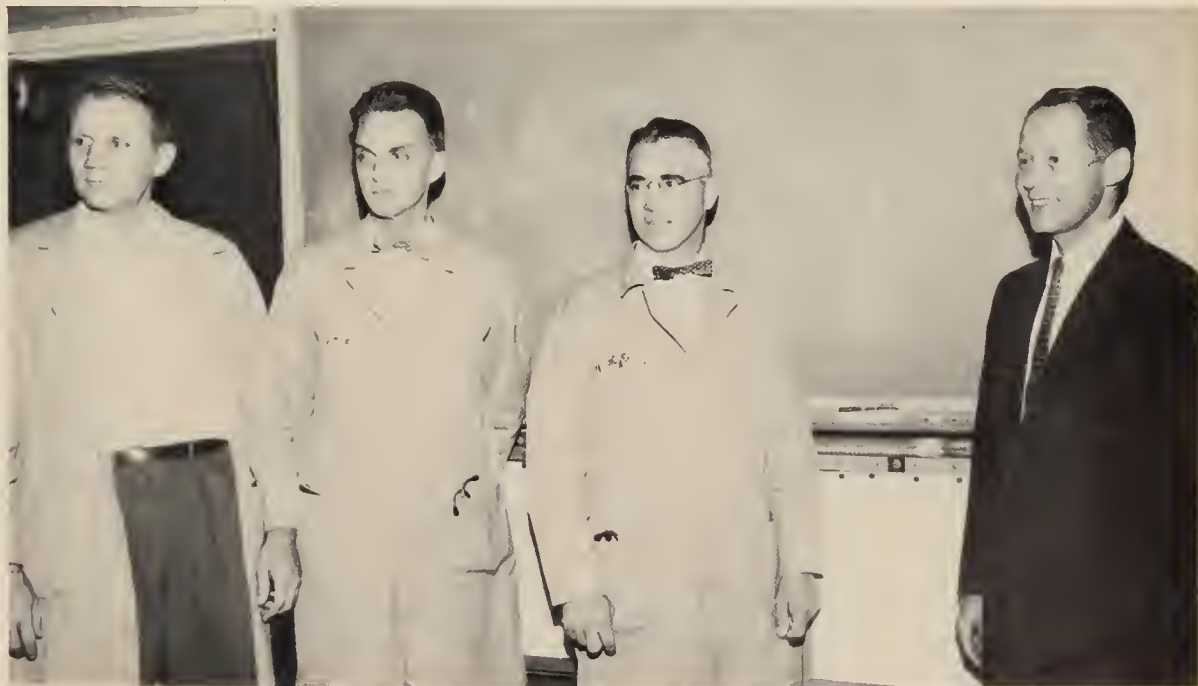

Dr. Arthur DeT. Valk
Professor of Clinical Surgery

Dr. Haward H. Bradshaw
Chairman of Department of Surgery

Dr. Richard T. Myers, Assistant Professor, illustrates on operative approach on the blockboard to other members of the Department of Surgery: Dr. Feldo Hightower, Associate Professor; Dr. Frank R. Johnston, Assistant Professor; and Dr. Louis DeS. Shoffner, Assistant Professor.

NEUROPSYCHIATRY

Dr. Eben Alexander
Professor of Neurosurgery and
Chief of Professional Services of NCBH

Dr. Angus C. Randolph
Acting Chairman of
Department of Psychiatry and Neurology

Three different specialties in the broad field of neuropsychiatry are represented by Drs. Richard C. Proctor, Assistant Professor of Psychiatry and Acting Clinical Director of Graylyn Hospital; Courtland H. Davis, jr., Assistant Professor of Neurosurgery; and Richard L. Masland, Professor of Neurology.

OPHTHALMOLOGY

Dr. R. Winston Roberts, jr.
Associate Professor of Ophthalmology

Dr. Richard G. Weaver, Instructor in Ophthalmology uses an "eye machine" in examination.

ORTHOPEDICS

Drs. James Wray, Instructor, and R. A. Moore, Associate Professor, rest after an operation.

Dr. H. Francis Forsyth, Associate Professor of Orthopedics and Chairman of Department.

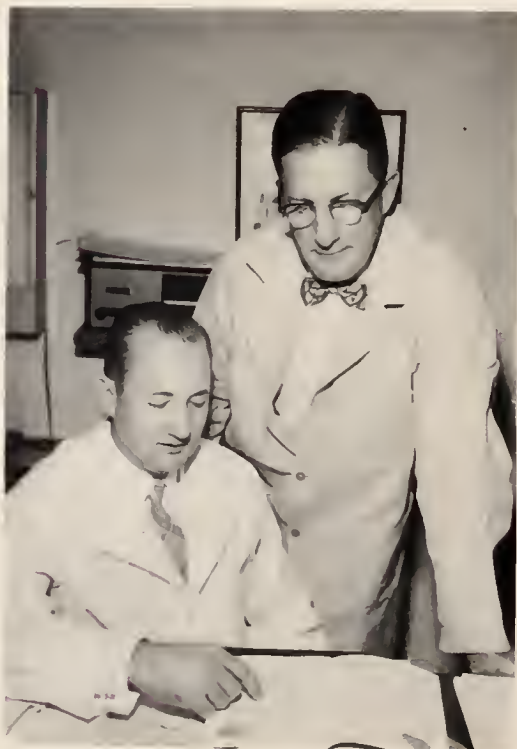

OTOLARYNGOLOGY

Dr. John R. Ausband, Assistant Professor of Otolaryngology, examines the throat of a patient from Mt. Airy.

Drs. William H. Boyce and Charles Norfleet, Assistant Professors, read the latest article.

Dr. James A. Horrill
Professor of Otolaryngology

UROLOGY

Dr. Fred K. Gorvey, Professor of Urology and Chairman of Department

OB-GYN

Dr. Frank R. Lock
Professor of Obstetrics and Gynecology

OB-Gyn Faculty Members hold a conference: Drs. Petty, Assistant; Mauzy, Associate Professor; Gobble, Instructor; Griffith, Assistant Professor; Burt, Assistant Professor; Wall, Instructor; Lock, Professor; Monroe, Instructor; Adams, Assistant Professor; and Whitener, Instructor.

TOXICOLOGY

Alcohol determinations are in the making as Dr. W. A. Wolff, Associate Professor of Clinical Chemistry and Toxicology, receives blood samples from Sergeant Gwynn and Captain Cofer. Technician Mrs. Jeanette Pruitt stands by to look up any moot medicolegal point.

CLASSES

"When the bell rings, pass your slide to the right."

"I drew a good number for the biochem. pool—29."

"Do you think she really can SEE all those electrons?"

"Fat, fascia, and feces—the story of anatomy lab."

"Dr. Field, from what page in Ranson and Clark are you lecturing?"

"Should I try to get a date for the dance, study, or just read the new edition of Playboy?"

"If Christmas had come one week later, I'd simply have died."

"Six U's, one P, and two S's. Do you think I'll pass?"

"I didn't REALLY believe all they told me about the 'fabulous fourteen'."

"HE was fifth in his class this year?"

"Have you tried on your barber's suit yet? We must uphold the dignity of the profession."

"You don't know the dosage schedule? Why, we have the greatest number of hours in Pharmacology of any med school in the country."

"I learned lots of Neurology but none of it in English."

"But I can't present the pt. tomorrow. I have to get my preinduction physical."

"Are you going to clinic today? I don't know; who has it? Of course, I DO need the sleep."

"Only politics kept me out of AOA."

"My last quarter—Medicine. Guess I'll have to huckle down for all those orals and writtens."

"Internship? I don't even know that I'll be graduated."

Senior Officers are, seated, Earl Watts, president; Earl Parker, vice-president; standing, Len LaBua, secretary-treasurer; Nancy O'Neil, historian; and Polk Williams, representative.

CLASS of '57

Behold the departing ward scarred, black gowned creature, For whom graduation is the ultimate feature.

Commencement, even in the Coliseum, climaxed a year in which the horizons of In Patient medicine were widened by introduction to the Out Patient Clinic with its intensive pursuit of psychoce-ramics. Another peek into the surgical specialties and psychiatry failed to bulge the ranks of superspecialists. OB offered little else but a reshuffling of the hours. Pediatric pedagogy, surgical sagacity, medical methodology were remembered with reverence as, unbelievably, Bowman Gray was already being thought of with a bit of nostalgia.

CLASS of '58

Behold the approaching white-clad creature, Of whom conceit more than brains is a feature.

Armored with egotism and girded with knowledge, they stride into the ranks of clinicians with the assurance of Alexander's phalanx, only to be shredded, macerated, and routed by the gently proffered suggestion of the staff that the Everest of medicine is yet to be attained. Proceeding with more caution and some trepidation, they run the gauntlet from Medicine lab to OB lab to Surgery lab with intermediary stops for blood letting. The leech of medieval medicine is now replaced by a iii cc. The guiding hands refuse to yield their tenuous grasp, and slowly but steadily the mist begins to lift. Replacement of dewy-eyed enchantment with the barest essentials of scientific reasoning during this thirty-three weeks holds high hopes of even broader and brighter horizons for the fourth and final, "Charge."

Leading the Juniors are Bill Rogers, president; Gene Washburn, vice-president; John Blackburn, treasurer; and Lois Sowyer, secretary.

Behold the approaching head-hung low creature. That he can be a sophomore student is easily featured.

For even with a summer's rest the burden of the coming "fabulous, fantastic, frantic fourteen" hangs heavy, and one comes to believe that dexedrine is a panacea. Meanwhile the most direct contact with clinicol medicine is the voracious viewing of "Medic" x 1 q.
week. All is not so glamorous as one is led to believe by the heroics of the video Rex Morgan, M. D., for illusions are cruelly shattered by the grim light of reality in the autopsy room, where uncinate fits not uncommonly accompany the cleansing of miles and interminable miles of colon. Dreams of glory are slowly restored as the harried sophomores are presented, for a modicum, their very own "Do-It-Yourself", Little Boy Doctor Diagnostic Kits, and the air is filled with the stocatto of faltering percussion as the aspiring Laennecs attempt to locate the heart. Failing interest is revived by a booster shot consisting of the dried (very) rudiments of obstetrics, surgery, and hematology.

CLASS of '60

Behold the appraaching gung-ho creature. That he will be a doctor no one can feature.

That is, no one except the freshman, who envisions himself in a world of white efficiency, calling for scalpel and retractor, not yet having learned that surgical scrub suits are green rather than white. He is then rudely awakened by the cruel fact that basic sciences must be learned, or passed at any rate, before he can even gain the privilege (?) of holding on oddly shaped piece of metal, which is destined never to have exactly the correct amount of pressure on it. At about this time ions, slides, muscles, nerves, bacterio, and viruses enter the brain. One would think the nerve tissue would respond horribly to such an onslaught, and it does just that, not in the form of an encephalitis but as hydrocephaly which threatens to swell and burst just before the shunt of that summer quarter off is provided. Now even the freshman student finds it hard to feature himself a doctor creature.

ACTIVITIES

"SAMA? I thought that was a Latin American dance step."

"Bridge, anyone?"

"MediChoir? Thank heavens; I thought the furnace was blowing up!"

"And how did YOUR picture for the annual come out this year?"

"Let's go to the beach this week end. Oh, you're going to New York!"

"'Fuzzy' must be smiling on the meeting of the historical society."

"How DO you get to the Policemen's Pistol Club?"

"I hear there's a move afoot to found Zeta Omega Zeta, local scholastic fraternity for the bottom sixth of the class."

"How CAN we get more material for the Journal?"

"Aren't you going to the BSU's hayride?"

"A lecture on Estate Planning? WHO has an estate?"

"Another party? Can't Ajax EVER buy his OWN beer?"

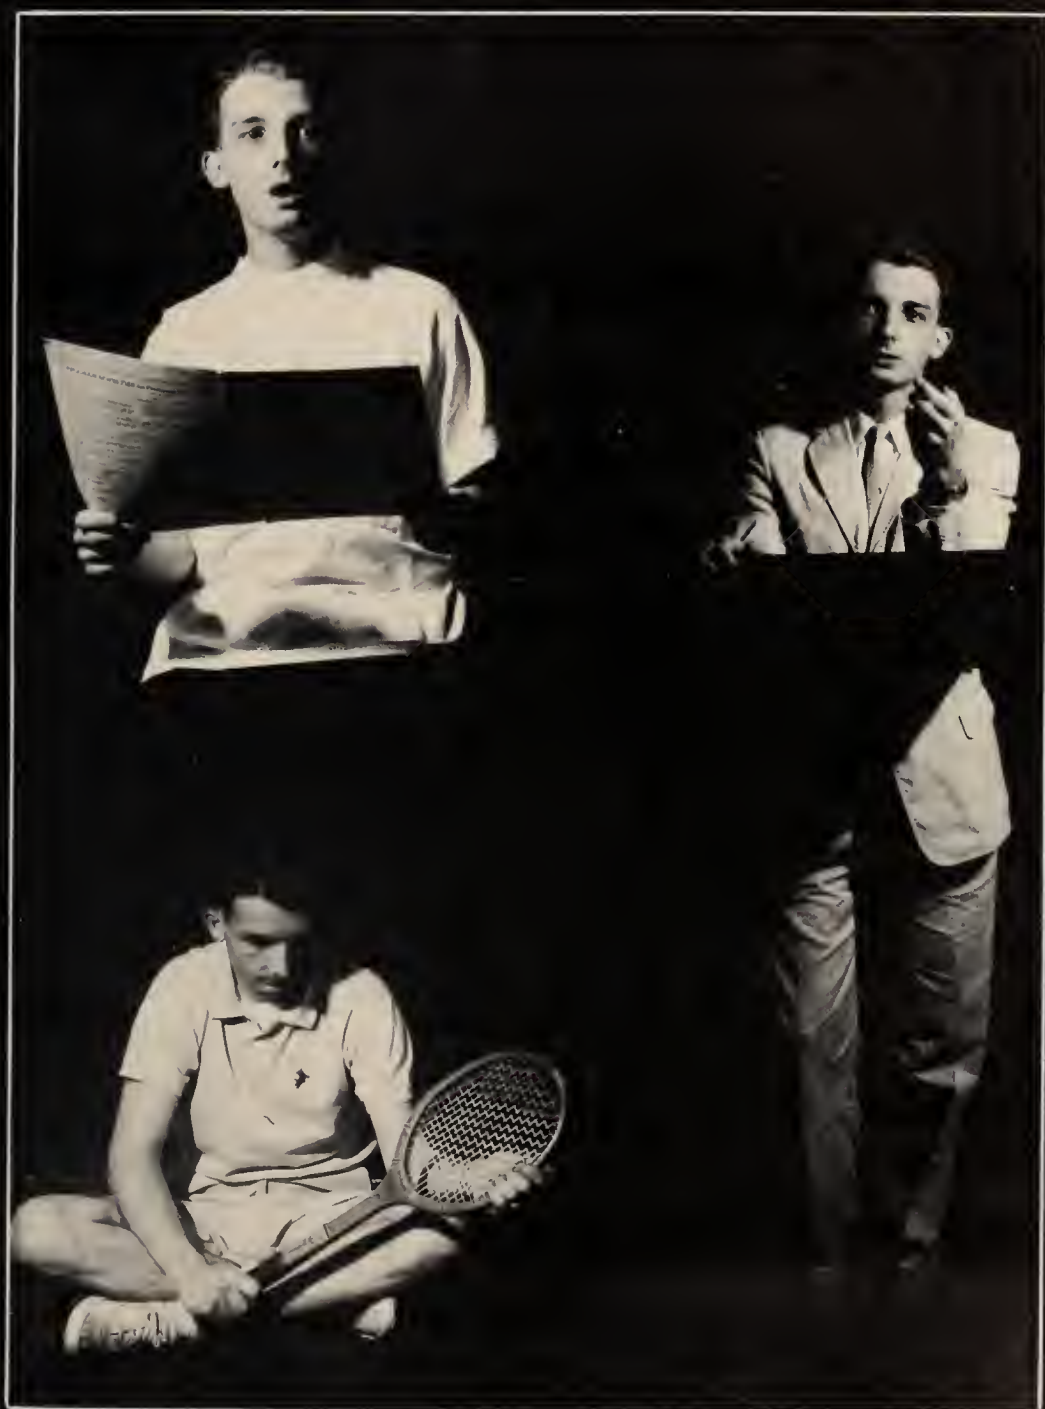

"Why do we have to have a section in the HOWLER?"

"The Demon Docs nailed down last place in the league today."

"Coffee break apparently is the most sustained activity of the clinical years."

"An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

"But we don't want to have graduation exercises with Wake Forest!"

SAMA

The Student American Medical Association or SAMA as it is so lovingly called takes pride in announcing each year those chapters in medical schools around the country which have attained the ultimate—100% membership. The Bowman Gray Chapter seems to have deeply engraved its name in that list, for it is there each and every year. But then, why should it not be? The officers in this medical school are shrewd: When tuition is paid each quarter, dues for SAMA are automatically added. Paying of the six dollars allows one all the duties and privileges of membership in the Student American Medical Association and gives one the further opportunity of wishfully dreaming of membership in the parent organization, the American Medical Association or AMA as it is so lovingly called. That was where we began?

SAMA Officers are Kitchen, treasurer; Sellers, president; Royal, veep; and Morris, treasurer.

Committee Chairmen are Tom Morris, freshman orientation; Tom Kitchen, finance; Phil Sellers, honor and health; George Kimberly, publicity; Homer Poscholl, insurance; Bill Royal, publications and programs.

William S. Myers

Business Manager

The staff of The Gray Matter began its work in June of 1956 with the fanfare of trumpets which heralds the birth of a yearbook. At the time that it was announced that the annual would be included in The Hawler, we realized that we luckily had signed our contracts early. Of course, the editor and the business manager were the happiest of all to continue their work, for they would still get paid, a fact which in large measure was responsible for their willingness to put in extra hours for their "Dear Old Alma Mater-To-Be." The story ends happily for all concerned since this is not to be the last edition. We shall still have our own yearbook; the staff will receive its remuneration (we hope); and the Wake Forest students will in addition get to see the charming faces of Bowman Gray medical students in their annual.

GRAY MATTER

Earl W. Parker
Editor

Bernard D. Herman
Business Manager

Sundries employ Earl Watts, Hervy Kornegay, Joe Stokes, Earl Parker, and John Carter.

The Journal of the Bowman Gray School of Medicine has at least one claim to fame: It is one of very few journals in the world to be published by medical students themselves. Or is it the ONLY one? The yearbook staff forgets which is correct but does know that the sister publication IS unique, by some route or other. The Journal, in its very first edition of the year, furthered its virtuosity by being, no doubt, the first publication, medical or otherwise, to reveal the GENTIC aspects of diabetes. The staff utilized its great knowledge gained in college psychology by making the reader wonder, while reading the index, if it were going to be diabetes mellitus or diabetes insipidus. Well, they also will get paid, and we can say this only because their last issue has gone to press without a word about the staff of The Gray Matter.

ALPHA OMEGA ALPHA

Dignity is the watchword for this one, but then how can one be other than serious when speaking of the "brains" of medical school? For they are, after all, the Younts, Netskys, Maslands, Bradshaws, Carpenters, Artoms, Cay-ers, and Garveys of tomorrow. They are the ones who not only have the basic intelligence but also the ability to be consistent. We are proud of them, for it is not a facile task to be for four years among the top students scholastically.

FREDERICK R. TAYLOR SOCIETY

The Frederick R. Taylor Society is concerned in some way with the history of medicine. Its members must be employed in the perusal of medical history since they made little of it themselves. They have a very imposing certificate of membership which is almost enough to make the freshman medical student want to join until he finds that this certificate is more imposing than the number of members willing to turn out for their picture, as evidenced below.

An outline of medical history is being prepared by Society officers Bernie Vick, secretary; Zeb Burton, vice-president; Earl Parker, president.

FRATERNITIES

"The Phi Rhos. They're the ones with the Lecture Series."

"The Phi Chis. They're the ones who own a house."

"Come on over to the house."

"We're having a stag party, Thursday night."

"Lappy, the Phi Chi's mascot."

"Did you get a bid from both fraternities?"

"Which way are you going?"

"Is tonight pledge night?"

"Frat meeting tomorrow? Yes, and there's a fine if you don't attend."

"Fall Formal: Who is your date?"

"I owe twenty-two dollars?"

"Congratulations! Nice to have you as a brother."

"Clean-up day? Oh, I have to study."

"Winter Dance: Have you been to the foot of the hill?"

"How CAN we get him to pay his bill?"

"Fraternity spirit(s)—most in evidence at social functions."

"ANOTHER meeting? Is there going to be a good speaker?"

"What are the chances for getting a new house this year?"

"Spring Formal: Ray Anthony is playing?"

"Elections? Who's willing to do that much extra work?"

"Graduation: What should we have done for social life without the fraternity?"

PHI CHI

Ensnconced in the palatial splendor of a multiroomed mansion, whose construction remains a morvel of contemporary (vintage 1900) architecture, the worthy Phi Chis dwell, complacent in the knowledge that theirs is the only house in Winston in which the Smithsonian is interested. The wofing of eerie cries in the still of the night indicates to the neighbors and St. John parishioners that either the "brothers" have bought brew for Ajac and Hines again or that Lappy Has Come Home! The Antabuse line forms outside Student Health every Monday morning (Office Hours 12:30-1:30 Monday-Friday; No Saturdays).

Charles Duckett
Presiding Senior

Four ducks in a row are officers Charlie Duckett, presiding senior; Duck Garrison, presiding junior; Bill Linder, secretary; and Chuck Heller, treasurer.

Phi Chi members Ken Grigg, Chuck Heller, and Art Bard lounge in the newly decorated chapter room, one of the fraternity's projects for the year.

ΦΧ

PHI RHO SIGMA

Ensnared in the self-righteous academic security of having sponsored a lecture series, available to all but comprehensible to few, the Phi Rhos dwell in various houses, complacent in the knowledge that as long as Curt Maunder caters they will not have to hie to secure a house. The wafting of plaintive cries through the night indicates to the multifarious neighbors and the Bacteriology Department that staphylococci have again been the piece de resistance at the bi-weekly dinner meeting. The Donnagel, Koopectate, paregoric, and fortitude lines from outside Student Health every other Wednesday.

Homer Paschall
President

Leading Chi Theta Chapter are Paschall, president; Stokes, first vice-president; Kimberly, second vice-president; Rogers, secretary; and Rish, treasurer.

The Phi Rhos entertain Dr. Eric J. Rust, Professor of Apologetics at Southern Baptist Seminary and Speaker for Religious Focus Week, at their meeting.

Phi Rho Fraternity members and pledges for this year were, left to right, first row, Buck Rish, Steve Gee, Billy Reeves, Steve Robinson, John Blake; second row, B. C. Phillips, Hubert Pierce, Bill Rogers, Paul Tilley, Jerome Hager; third row: Carl Denny, Jay Rosenblum, Joseph Stokes, Walter Pribe, Jack Titmarsh; fourth row, Donald Hartzog, Ken Tomberlin, Sam Lam, Bill Downs, Bob Bell; fifth row, Bob Stepp, Don Johnson, George Borber, Joseph Black, Herschell Matthews; sixth row, George Wall, James Sexton, Bill Stickley, Homer Paschall, George Kimberly; seventh row, Billy Royal, John Blackburn, Morton Altschuler, Bob Heymann, Jim Quinn, and Richard Snyder.

MY CAP

It's only a piece of white muslin
Perched on the top of my head,
Its value to some may mean nothing,
To me it's a symbol instead.

A symbol of hope, cheer, and comfort
To those who are suffering and ill.
To me it gives strength unbelieving
My work to perform with a will!

Sometimes I am discouraged, disheartened;
My tasks seem so hopeless to me.
My cap seems to speak of a promise
Of things I so want to be!

No jewels adorn its wide brim,
So simple and plain is its line—
Treat it with reverence and honor,
For there's only one cap of its kind!

Ann L. Casstevens, R. N.

We, the seniors of 1957, proudly dedicate the White Matter to Ann L. Casstevens, R. N., who has given unselfishly of her time to guide, encourage, and cheer the members of our class and school when we needed it most. Never shall we, as graduates, forget her ardent enthusiasm, friendliness to all students, understanding of our problems, taking our mistakes with a smile, and encouraging us in our endeavors to become graduate nurses.

To you, our class sponsor, we are forever grateful.

HISTORY OF THE CLASS OF '57

We, the members of the senior class, stand at the threshold of a new and different way of life. It is with happy anticipation as well as quiet reminiscence that we arrive at this point. We leave after three years, having made only a small dent in time; but a large collection of experiences, accomplishments, and memories go with us.

August 30, 1954, Winston-Salem, North Carolina, and we, the class of 1957, found ourselves suddenly in the midst of unpacking and orientation. We had come to North Carolina Baptist Hospital School of Nursing with a definite goal in mind: that of preparing ourselves to become future nurses.

When we first donned our white shoes, hose, and uniform, we thought,

"Here is the picture of a nurse." But, when we were assigned to Second West to arrange flowers, such were the qualms experienced that we felt sure we should fail nursing arts, especially for watering artificial flowers.

Finally in May, after many long hours of toil and strife spent in study, the elated day of capping arrived. No longer should we respond to the seemingly, degrading statement of "those p.c.'s"; we were capped nurses and on our way toward realizing our goal—a class with an identity.

Our freshman summer brought forth many enjoyable occasions such as swim parties, moonlight picnics, and the inevitable sunbathing on shuffleboard beach. Along with the fun, though, we learned the value of becoming a part of the "team"; of working with doctors, medical students, and nurses in one common purpose: that of giving to our patients the best care possible.

During our junior year the awaited specialties sprang up: the operating room with the hard task of learning to perfect our sterile technique, especially to the tune of "Drop it!"

The members of our class were drawn closer in the bonds of friendship because of the activities we shared. Those gay evenings spent making and selling hot dogs and stationery and giving away advice to underclassmen will remain a memorable part of our junior year. The Spring Follies with its striking chorus line, school beauties, and many varied talents provided the school community as well as our class with an evening chock full of good entertainment.

The Junior-Senior prom and banquet was held in May at the Roof Garden of the Hotel Robert E. Lee.

During the summer of 1956 the first group of our classmates began their three month visit to Raleigh and to the "Hill". The experiences shared, the maturity and understanding of ourselves and others gained, will make this period of our training an important phase of our total program. The black bands which we added to our caps in September were an ever present reminder of added responsibilities and prestige.

As graduation approached, we shared the spark of excited expectation, the sobering thought that now we were to take our place in the field of medicine, and most of all the realization that in the future we must prove to be a credit to ourselves, our school, and our profession.

One Hundred-One

To Our House Mothers-----

To the ladies who have shared our lives from the beginning to the end in our training we wish to express our sincere appreciation for making our stay a most memorable one. Yet, for us, it is really not the end, for we shall always remember you for giving us encouragement when we needed it most.

We thank you for making for us a home away from home.

ADVERTISEMENTS

.WINSTON wins on flavor!

Now America's top-selling filter cigarette!

Winston smokers know why their cigarette is the most popular filter brand of all. Winston tastes good — like a cigarette should! And the exclusive Winston filter works so well that the full, rich flavor gets right through to you. Try easy-drawing Winston for all the fun of smoking!

Smoke WINSTON the filter cigarette America enjoys most of all!

TO THE CLASS OF '57 . . .

With sincere appreciation of the trust placed in us by the Physicians, Nurses, and Institutions, which for more than ninety-eight years we have been privileged to serve, we bespeak for you as you launch upon your careers of service to mankind the same full share of public confidence and trust which has inspired us to greater efforts all through the years.

May you always "Look up and not down—forward and not backward"—and may your guiding light be "First consideration for others."
